Pathbuilders Now Offering Consulting Services to Meet Growing Demand for Customized Internal Programs and Advisory Services

ATLANTA – Pathbuilders, Inc., which is known for its external mentoring programs and organizational training for Fortune-ranked companies, is now offering consulting services. The consulting offering is a natural outgrowth of Pathbuilders’ series of external programs that develop high-impact female leaders through executive education and peer exchange with structured mentoring.

“The consulting practice evolved organically as clients began to ask for internal programs and strategic consulting to complement the external mentoring and development programs that many have already participated in through Pathbuilders,” said Helene Lollis, president of Pathbuilders.

Pathbuilders consultants help organizations to strategically build pipelines of high-performing women through customized internal development programs, mentoring programs, and alliance networks. The curricula are designed to leverage the organization’s top female talent in order to effectively build talent pipelines and address the needs of women at each of the four stages of their careers. Customized offerings include a range of services from individual assessments to seminars on organizational culture, developing a personal brand, internal marketing, career planning, mentee/mentor training, and more. The programs may include interactive educational seminars, discussion forums, mentoring and network building opportunities.

Advisory services include organizational and talent pipeline assessments, employee surveys and strategic consulting aimed at making companies more effective overall at developing, utilizing and retaining high-performing female talent.

“Our expansion into consulting and advisory services also enables Pathbuilders to expand its geographic market reach. Through internally implemented programs and consulting, we are now extending our services into organizations with employees outside the reach of our Atlanta-based programs,” said Lollis.

About Pathbuilders Inc.
